A dance is scheduled to take place at the Rifles' Armory this evening.

J. W. Wilkinson went to Jacksonville Thursday afternoon, on a business trip.

New Smyrna was represented in the city Thursday by H. C. Waldron, W. A.
Fitts and G. B. Thomas.

Marshal Zuber says that he did not give the $5 to Ed. Leonard, the negro crook, to tell where the stolen goods were, but that the money was turned over to Gad Taylor, a colored deputy, who in turn gave it to another negro, who told the officers where the stolen goods were hidden.

S. W. Carroll, who has been mentioned as a probable candidate for alderman, when seen this morning by a Daily News reporter, stated that quite a number of his friends had time and time again urged him to declare his candidacy for the position of councilman, but that his business interests kept him so confined that he did not see how he could attend to the duties of the office, but in the event a sufficient number of citizens would nominate him and insist on having him run, that, if elected, he might take his turn at the wheel.

The Perfect Pun.
A perfect pun makes good sense both ways; the edges meet with a click like the blades of a sharp pair of shears.
Sometimes the very thoughts fit tight together in antagonistic identity, as when the man said of the temperance exhorter that he would be a good fellow if he would only let drink alone, or when Disraeli (if it was he) wrote to the youth who had sent him a first novel: "I thank you very much. I shall lose no time in reading it," or as when a man, seeing a poor piece of carpentry, said, "That chicken coop looks as if some man had made it himself." Exquisite perverse literariness of thought!
And the same absolute punning, the very self destruction of a proposition, was the old death thrust at a poor poet by the friend who said, "His poetry will be read when Shakespeare and Homer are forgotten." It was a fine double edged blade of speech until some crude fellow, Heine, I think, sharpened it to a white edge by adding,
"and not till then," a banality that dulled its perfection forever.—J. A.
Macy in Atlantic.

Remarkable Lunar Rainbow.
I recall many lunar rainbows during the half century since I was an observant boy and, if memory serves me, one double lunar rainbow. But the most perfect of these bows that I recall I saw on the edge of Darlington, S. C.
I was in a road leading north, with extensive fields east and west; hence my opportunity. The full moon had just risen above the tops of the distant woods, and the bow to the west was perfect. The span of the bow was matterially less than the span of a sun rainbow, but its depth, or thickness, was proportionately much greater. The rainbow colors were distinct, but pale, as if the arch were built of pale mother-of-pearl, and they changed and faded less rapidly than the sun rainbows I have seen.

When in camp on John's Island, South Carolina, I saw a brilliant sun rainbow with one foot of the arch so near we could stand on it or pass behind and in front of it, but we did not "dig for gold."—Macon Cor. Scientific
